

Spitz Sunflower Seeds

By: Isabella H.
St. Margaret School

Twenty-five Dutch farmers went west for new land;
In 'seventy-two, they arrived on new sand.

In Canada, Tom Droog met Emmy, his wife;
Together in Alberta, they began a new life.

They rented some land from a nice, couple;
And soon their money would do more than double.

Corn seeds or sunflower, which would they choose?
Why not pick Sunflowers, nothing to lose?!

They chose the name Spitz, and who would have thought?
From this seedling business, they'd gain quite a lot!

With three different flavours and a resealable bag,
Many were sold with a tiny price tag.

They bought out their rivals, tripling in size;
Spitz started out small, but now soaring up high.

After his business of twenty-five years,
To Pepsico, Spitz sold and he shed a few tears.

Dr. Tom Droog did an astonishing thing,
Now he is known as the sunflower king.